

YOUTH-AT-RISK PANEL SOUNDBITES

A YOUTH'S HOME ENVIRONMENT BECOMES MORE IMPORTANT

Panellists urge a greater focus on the home environment in addition to providing the digital infrastructure in this period of COVID-19.

A MINDSET SHIFT NEEDS TO OCCUR

The general public needs to better understand the actions of youths-at-risk and a shift in perspective should occur - viewing them as victims of adversity instead of being delinquents by their free will.

ALTERNATIVE SOLUTIONS CAN BE EXPLORED

Beyond mentorship programs, there are other alternatives like teaching them entrepreneurship and increasing their confidence and self-love. Given the rising trend of cyber bullying, we have to pay more attention to their mental health in an increasingly digital world.

VOLUNTEER CARE IS IMPORTANT

Greater ownership of the volunteer journey and more focus on volunteer management help to combat social inequality in relevant initiatives. Volunteers should be connected to the larger ecosystem of people in the lives of Youths-at-Risk.

For the full panel, please visit <http://bit.ly/sidyouthatrisk>

More info at: www.social-impact-day.carrd.co/

